ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatuses to calculate an output mask in a network switching engine that can support multiple aggregation methods. An aggregation table is programmed that includes physical link selection information for two or more aggregation methods that are associated with two or more different link aggregation groups.